

Roots project at Bialik

YEAR 7 students at Bialik College have recently embarked on a journey of self-discovery with the beginning of the yearlong Shorashim (roots) Project, a process of investigating their ancestral roots and developing an understanding of their future as responsible adults.

This year's program began with each student inviting a member of their family to the school to interview and discover more about them.

The entire year level saw each student sitting with their family member, listening to their fascinating personal stories.

The students enjoyed delving deeper into their family histories before enjoying a special family tea at Bialik's Jewish life centre.

Sam, Jamie, Ashleigh and Natalie Shostak at Bialik College.