

Bringing Israel to Bialik

BIALIK celebrated its annual “Balagan Week” recently with the entire school taking part in the week-long celebration.

Over the course of a week, the Informal Education team along with Zionist madrichim came together to bring Israeli culture to the school.

Israeli flags were donned around the school while students took part in activities like making pita bread, Israeli-themed arts and crafts and Israeli dancing. The aim of the initiative is for the students to have a greater understanding of Israeli cities, towns, landmarks and lifestyle.

Every year the week has one “exciting revelation”. This year, the students celebrated the revealing of Bialik’s own Pokemon – Isramon.
