

Attending the Convention

TWO year 11 Bialik students, Genevieve Kleytman and Lucy Korman represented Bialik College at the three-day National Schools Constitution Convention earlier this year.

The subject of the convention was 'Indigenous recognition in the constitution'.

The students travelled to Canberra where they met up with other students from across the country and participated in a mock referendum.

Kleytman and Korman said the highlights included "hearing from lots of amazing speakers, visiting the old and new Parliament Houses, having dinner at the High Court, attending an event at the Governor General's house and all the interesting and challenging discussions with other students."
