

SCHOOLYARD

Bialik College principal Jeremy Stowe-Lindner with the recipient of the KLD scholarship Ruby Bouhadana.

Kwong Lee Dow scholars

YEAR 10 students from Jewish schools were announced as recipients of the University of Melbourne's 2016 Kwong Lee Dow (KLD) Young Scholars Program, which prepares them for university life and nurtures their academic talents.

Bialik College's Ruby Bouhadana joins Mount Scopus Memorial College's Alex Miller, Leibler Yavneh College's Sarah Winthrop, The King David School's Jory Braun, Yeshivah College's Eitan Schachna and Beth Rivkah College's Sabrina Vilfand for this incredible opportunity.

The KLD scholarship recognises 500 year 10 students from across the state for their academic aptitude, leadership qualities and community involvement, and provides them with the resources to excel during VCE.

If the recipients gain an ATAR score of 95 and above, they are also guaranteed a place at Melbourne University.