

Bialik gives back

BIALIK College recently donated 50 computers to the Ardoch Youth Foundation to support the educational needs of children and young people.

The computers, which were worth more than $20,000, will be distributed to a school in Sunshine to help provide the tools to achieve a decent education with appropriate technology.

Ardoch representative Rachel Morley thanked the school for its generous contribution. "The refurbished computers are a highly prized item that will greatly benefit the students and make a real difference to their quality of education."

As well as donating top quality computers, Bialik teachers have delivered training programs from the school's Culture of Thinking approach to Ardoch volunteers to provide better quality educational methods for disadvantaged youth.

Bialik principal Jeremy Stowe-Lindner said he supports the strong relationship between the school and Ardoch. "Bialik is thrilled to be partnering with Ardoch to support the wider community. Bialik staff have helped train Ardoch volunteers to deliver programs to students in need, and our donation of computers furthers this relationship".

From left: (back) David Micallef, Fiona Gordon, Nick Gabb, (front) Zoe Fried and Carla Sher.