Georgia's the bee's knees

Nine-year-old Georgia, who is in year 3 at Bialik College, said she was "excited" to be named the winner of the national competition, over hundreds of other entries.

"It makes me feel very good that I could do something that would win," she told The AJN.

Georgia's artwork will arrive on the desk of the Prime Minister, the leader of the opposition, state politicians and community leaders with New Year's well wishes - a prospect she and her family are thrilled about.

"Both Georgia and her sister look forward to the competition every year, and very much enjoyed drawing the cards for this year's entry," mum Caroline said. "We're very excited."

Jennifer's entry was also among the judges' favourites.
