

Joel Krongold and Jesse Weller from Bialik College.

Tree Day and Bialik's Indigenous Garden

BIALIK College recently partook in national Tree Day, which occurred during a visit from the Arava Agricultural Science delegation to the school.

The year 4 students were given the opportunity to showcase their knowledge on trees and seeds with the esteemed visitors, explaining to the delegation that the purpose of the Indigenous Garden is to share Aboriginal knowledge of plants and restore some of the original vegetation to the local area.

When the plants are ready, the students will harvest and prepare edible sections using similar methods to those used by Indigenous Australians.

The garden inspires the students to combine their knowledge on the environment, mathematics and science while promoting diversity and understanding for the original harvesters of the land.